Welcome & How to Use

Thank you for downloading! These cards give learners a clear, calm way to talk about the holidays.

What's inside

- 64 picture cards in 5 groups: sentence starters, Christmas things, actions, feelings & senses, and social words & needs
- Large labels (6 per page) for labeling the room, word walls and pocket charts
- Small cards (20 per page) for PECS-style exchange, binders and lanyards
- 2 communication boards: Christmas Talk and Feelings & Needs
- Sentence strips: I want, I see, I like, I feel, I need
- First / Then board and a Calm Choices board

Color key

Card borders follow a Fitzgerald-Key-style color code, so learners and AAC users can find words by color.

- I / sentence starters
- Things (nouns)
- Actions (verbs)
- Feelings & senses
- Social words & needs
- No / stop words

Prep

1. Print on white cardstock (choose "actual size" / 100%).
2. Laminate for durability.
3. Cut on the dashed lines.
4. Add hook-and-loop dots to cards, boards and strips.

Ways to use

- Label real items: the tree, presents, the cocoa station.
- Pre-teach words before a party, concert or visit.
- Model on the boards as you talk: point, don't demand.
- Offer 2 to 3 choices for snacks, songs and activities.
- Send a set home for family gatherings.

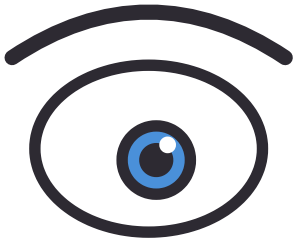

Supporting autistic learners over the holidays

The holidays bring noise, lights, crowds and schedule changes. The break, please, headphones, too loud, too bright and overwhelmed cards give learners a way to say so. Always honor them when a learner uses them. The no hug, please and high five cards let a learner choose how to greet family. Keep cards in the same place every day, and model them often without requiring a response.
